Robert Halfon, MP for Harlow

HOUSE OF COMMONS
LONDON SW1A 0AA

Dear Mrs Beckham,

I have great admiration for you and your husband. I am writing to you following the reported news stories detailing your views on Essex.

I'd be delighted to give you a tour of Harlow and the surrounding villages in Essex at a time of your convenience.

MP offers Victoria Beckham a tour

William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

HARLOW MP Robert Halfon has offered to take Victoria Beckham and her husband David on a guided tour of the town after she was reported as saying she wanted to "forget" her Essex roots.

The fashion designer and former Spice Girl, who was born at Princess Alexandra Hospital but brought up in neighbouring Hertfordshire, made the comment at a show in New York after she was introduced as hailing from Harlow.

"I'd like to forget the Essex bit, it's not a very nice place," she was quoted as saying.

The following day she made amends for her slip-up when she tweeted a picture of a pink heart bearing the slogan "Essex girl and proud of it."

MP offers to show Posh Spice town's good side

■ From front page

Mrs Beckham's comment by tweeting: "Hey @victoriabeckham: if you are tired of Essex you are tired of life."

"Pleased to show you around beautiful Harlow so you might change your mind."

Now he has sent her a letter in which he describes Essex as "God's own county" and lists many of Harlow's attributes.

Written on House of Commons notepaper, Mr Halton said: "I hadn't realised that you were born in my constituency at Princess Alexandra Hospital.

"As you can imagine, in Harlow and Essex we are bursting with pride about our town and our county."

Special

"Without a doubt, Essex is God's own county and Harlow is a very special place to live."

"You will know that Harlow is a new town that provided homes for many thousands of people from the East End after the war."

Mr Halfon said he was proud of the town's green spaces, culture, art and sports as well as its community spirit.

He also praised Harlow's new housing developments, its education facilities and the Leisurezone which he said his husband would also enjoy.

"I'd be delighted to give you a tour of Harlow and the surrounding villages in Essex at a time of your convenience," he concluded.

However, it still remains to be seen if the Beckhams - who until recently owned Rowenbury House, dubbed Buckingham Palace by the tabloids, on the Harlow/Sawbridgeworth border - will accept the MP's invitation.

Despair turns to joy for scooter pensioner

Star reader provides Jan with replacement vehicle

William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

THE plight of a disabled pensioner who said she had been robbed of her independence when her mobility scooter was stolen has touched the heart of a Star reader.

Jan Hepworth, 70, was devastated when her Shoprider Perrero scooter, worth more than £1,000, was taken from the car park at the Aldi supermarket in The Stow.

But her despair turned to delight after the story was published in last week's Star and a reader got in touch to offer Mrs Hepworth a scooter which was used by her late mother.

Article

"The lady saw the article and I went to visit her after I was put in touch with her," said Mrs Hepworth, of Vicarage Wood.

"I had already had an offer from a cousin but I went to see the lady anyway and found the scooter to be immaculate and very similar to my previous one. I took it without any doubts."

The kind-hearted reader, who asked to remain anonymous, kept the scooter after her mother died but had no use for it.

"The lady said she had a spare scooter that nobody was using," said Mrs Hepworth. "I was humbled when I went round to see her because I thought nobody could be so kind."

"It is wonderful. I hear a lot of bad things but there is so much good in the world. She was a lovely lady and I am going to send her some flowers."

The woman refused to take any payment for the scooter, but Mrs Hepworth said she would make a donation to Cancer Research UK which was her mother's chosen charity.

Last week Mrs Hepworth feared she would be left housebound after the scooter was taken from outside the supermarket on the morning of Saturday, May 30.

Every day

She used it every day and said that without it she would be unable to get out and about.

"I could not believe it was gone," she said. "I was in shock as I could not have been in the shop for more than eight minutes."

"I was left quite traumatised. You can't believe how I feel, the scooter was my only means of mobility."

Police are investigating the theft and thought they had recovered the scooter, but it turned out that it was not Mrs Hepworth's.

Anyone with information about the theft should call Harlow police on the non-emergency 101 number.

Disabled dog has new life after rescue and surgery

A DISABLED dog which underwent surgery to straighten her wonky legs after being brought to the UK from Bulgaria is starting her new life with a family in Old Harlow.

German shepherd dog Sheba is now on the road to recovery in the care of new owners Paul and Toni Viner following the operations to correct her bow legs.

"We have only had her a short time but it is like we have had her forever," said Mr Viner. "She is very loving, very kind and very gentle."

"She is very appreciative of the life she has got and very forgiving for the life she has had. She just likes company, a stroke and a little chat."

Sheba was brought to this country from Bulgaria earlier this year after being spotted on the internet.

Dog lover Debbie Draven launched a Facebook campaign to highlight her plight and to raise money. Once in the UK, Sheba was cared for at the Mutts in Distress animal shelter in Little Hallingbury, founded by Pat Clark.

Sheba underwent surgery on one of her front legs in February and on the other last month. The operations were carried out free of charge by Chaim Pilosof, a partner and surgeon at Companion Care, Cambridge.

Sheba, who was originally called Maria, is now more than half way through a six-week rest period at Mr and Mrs Viner's home in Old Road.

The couple's first dog, a Belgian shepherd called Shane who they also got from Mutts in Distress after he was found in a ditch, died in March.

Beautiful

"Shane was a beautiful dog, part of the family," said Mr Vine, a street trading enforcement officer in the London Borough of Waltham Forest. "Wherever we went, he went."

He added: "Sheba has helped us with the healing process of Shane. She will never replace Shane and we will never compare her to Shane. We are helping each other in a big way."

Mr Viner was full of praise for vet Mr Pilosof and his team for everything they had done for Sheba.

"They were amazing, such lovely people," he said.

Burglars, can you please bring back our puppy?

Family's heartfelt appeal for return of pet in wake of break-in

William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A DEVASTATED Harlow family has appealed for the safe return of their four-month-old puppy which was stolen in a burglary.

Burglars broke into the home of the Richard and Tracy Taylor at about 2pm last Wednesday and took a number of items – including the Chihuahua called Caramel who belonged to their youngest daughter Lexie, eight, who is celebrating her birthday today (Thursday).

Her mother Tracy, 44, said: "We are so devastated. She was my little girl's best friend and we just need her back. We're all so upset and just want to find her."

"Lexie cannot understand what happened, and she was crying in bed all of last night. They were inseparable."

Mrs Taylor added that thieves had stolen jewellery and a small amount of money, but the possessions meant nothing compared to the theft of Caramel.

A Facebook campaign has now been started to raise awareness of Caramel's theft, with more than 1,300 people joining the search to bring the dog back to its family.

Mr and Mrs Taylor also have three sons – Mason, Lewis and Jordan – who were all out of the house during the burglary.

Hoodies

"We were all out at work but our neighbour saw two men wearing hoodies."

"He chased them but they got into a brown Mini car and drove off. They got hold of our other dog too but dropped it."

She added a third suspect was seen

DEVASTATED: Lexie, 8, and Caramel were inseparable running off in the direction of Mark Hall Woods. The police have been informed and are investigating.

Caramel, described as a "small brown fluffy thing", was not fitted with a microchip as she was too small but had been due to be chipped this week. She has a lump on her stomach from a hernia which is scheduled for surgery to remove.

"[The burglars] smashed all of the back door to break in and I'm just so relieved that no-one was in the house as who knows what could have happened," added Mrs Taylor.

She has now appealed for help through social media and has contacted local schools.

"We don't care about any of the other items which were stolen we just want the dog back," she said. "We don't even care who the people are who stole her."

Bypass is the only solution

SIR A. Dixon's observations on the effect of the covering up of the traffic lights by the Leisurezone are timely (Letters, June 4).

Perhaps if our county councillors had taken any note of the many suggestions from Harlow residents to do this and also at the many blockages they have installed on every east-west route across town, then at least the £4.7m spent on the modified exit from the roundabout at the Clock Tower might have been saved and the money used on housing.

The observation is timely because the significantly better flow can be correctly attributed to the few pounds spent on traffic light covers rather than the millions of pounds spent and totally wasted at the Clock Tower exit and cycle tunnel.

The lack of judgement calls into question the judgement at county level. The waste on this project, as well as that on the dualling of the A414 Hastingwood section of road, the future projects like the Maypole site link and the £50m-plus project to drive the M11 into Gilden Way should be the subject of a public inquiry and taken before the public accounts committee.

It is clear they will not solve the current or future long-term congestion problems and they need to be stopped.

The long-term solution would be to provide the major road to the west of the town as in the original blueprint. This could be done with a ring road consisting of a southern bypass linked to a northern bypass.

E.Vine

Fenton Grange, Harlow

SIR Further to A. Dixon's letter about the traffic lights in Second Avenue, I use this stretch of road regularly and agree that there has been such a difference in the flow of traffic since the lights have been covered up outside the Leisurezone.

The result is happy drivers and fewer of them sneaking into the bus lane to get ahead.

The lights are not needed and just cause massive problems, as far as I'm concerned. Long may it continue.

Tories are not workers party

SIR Harlow MP Robert Halfon demonstrates a lack of knowledge and understanding of politics and history in suggesting that the Conservative Party renames itself the Workers Party (Star, May 28).

Many parties in many countries have described themselves as workers' parties in the past couple of centuries, the premise of this label being the claim that the interests of workers and capitalists are essentially incompatible. Conservative parties have always rejected this claim and asserted that capital and labour share a common interest.

Renaming the Conservative Party the Workers Party would imply that it did not act in the interests of capitalists – an impression that I am sure Mr Halfon would wish to dispel in his role as the newly-appointed deputy chairman of the Conservative Party.

However, the housing policies of Mr Halfon's party have done much both to swell the size of the private rented sector and to drive up rents in that sector. In facilitating landlordism the Tories harm the interests of capitalists. Landlords are not capitalists; the incomes of capitalists arise from the production of wealth but landlordism does not produce wealth. High rents impede the mobility of labour and act as an upward pressure on wages, both of which are detrimental to the interests of capitalists.

The living standards of workers have fallen as private sector rents have risen steeply in recent years. Those on low incomes are entitled to housing benefit and the rise in private rents has led to higher housing benefit bills. Many landlords are in effect being enriched by the state.

However, rather than acting against overcharging landlords, the Tories and their Liberal Democrat buddies attacked low-income tenants and cut their housing benefit.

The failure to curb extortionate rents and the deliberate impoverishment of low income working class private sector tenants are but two examples of how the nasty party acts against the interests of the working class. If Mr Halfon wishes to re-brand the Conservative Party, perhaps he should change its name to the Landlords Party.

Crackdown on parking pests

SIR Further to the letter about parking from J.M. Gillespie (Star, May 28), yellow lines are on roads for a reason – to stop people parking where it is dangerous and also to stop congestion.

I have witnessed children nearly being knocked down by people trying to get as near to school as possible and parking halfway on the pavements.

More traffic wardens are needed to prevent illegal parking.

Your correspondent states they get to school just after 3pm. Surely this is ample time to walk there.

Welcome to the jungle...

SIR I couldn't resist sending this photo of East Park where the grass is waist high and the cow parsley even higher.

The dog walkers have managed to wear down a pathway through the jungle but there is no way that children can use the park for playing in.

What a joke that the council claims to cut our grass every 17 days.

Anne Small
Penshurst, Old Harlow

SIR As I travel around Harlow I notice that the grass is only cut in easily accessible places. The rest is let to grow to great heights.

Time for new bus operator

SIR I am inclined to agree with Maureen Boochoon regarding the R1/R31 bus service to Summers/Katherines (Letters, June 4).

I was on one at 10.50am this morning. I got on at the top of Summers and we had only just made it to the parade of shops when it broke down. That's not even one stop.

The company that runs this service needs to update the buses as they are all filthy inside.

If anything, a new company with newer buses should take over.

Coping with a brutal disease

SIR Many Star readers will have loved ones with pancreatic cancer. As one of Pancreatic Cancer UK's specialist nurses, I understand the devastating impact this brutal disease can have on families.

One person is diagnosed every hour and all too often very suddenly, plunging family members straight into a caring role while they are still trying to come to terms with this shocking news. They may feel confused, isolated, and be unsure where to turn.

To mark Carers Week we are publishing a free booklet for carers and loved ones of people with pancreatic cancer. It explains what the disease is, how to manage symptoms and side effects and how to navigate the healthcare system.

It also includes details of support for carers.

Readers can download the booklet from our website (www.pancreaticcancer.org.uk) or they can also speak to myself or one of my nurse colleagues on our freephone supportline.

Sex offender has jail term cut by judges

Pervert's sentence reduced by a year

Court Reporter

star@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A MAN who persuaded a girl half his age to send him indecent photos of herself has won his appeal to have his prison sentence reduced.

Ricky Goward-White, 26, of Longbanks, Harlow, was jailed for four years at Chelmsford Crown Court last November after admitting charges of possessing indecent images and two counts of inciting a child to engage in sexual activity.

During his trial the prosecution said the 13-year-old girl, who lived in Scotland, had befriended scores of men with whom she was "sexting". Police launched an investigation when they were contacted by her mother who was concerned her daughter was contacting strangers over the internet.

Goward-White was arrested in April 2013 after officers found details of his address. His mobile phone was seized and a search revealed he had stored 27 indecent images the Scottish girl.

JAILED: Goward-White

The court was told he had lied to the girl about his own age and tried to get her to meet him.

Sentencing Goward-White to four years in prison, the trial judge said what Goward-White had done was both morally and personally degrading to the child, adding that he had played a part in her corruption.

But Goward-White appealed against the length of his sentence and this week three judges at the Court of Appeal in London agreed and cut it to three years.

Judge Nicholas Cooke told Goward-White, who appeared via video link from prison, his crimes were not as serious as in cases where there was actual contact between an abuser and his victim.

The judge, sitting with Lord Justice Davis and Mr Justice Spence, said Goward-White's behaviour was aggravated by his lies about his age, his retention of the images and his attempts to meet him.

But he added: "Although there were aggravating features, the actual facts of this remote offending were very different from some offending with actual contact."

Some places left for triathlon to support mental health services

A CHARITY triathlon to raise money for West Essex Mind will take place next month.

The event is being organised by Harlow personal trainer Caroline Collins, of Healthy Body Healthy Mind, with Star news editor Gemma Gardner, pictured above.

It is also being supported by TV presenter Jeff Brazier, who runs life coaching business Come Coach With Me.

The event on Sunday, July 5, will be held at The Manor of Groves Hotel Health Club in High Wych.

Fundraisers will attempt one of either two distances. The first is made up of a 9km cycle, a 5km run and 50 lengths in the pool (1,000m) and the second, shorter course, includes a 7km bike ride, 2.5km run and 38 lengths (750m).

Mrs Collins said: "There are just a few spaces left, so if you're interested in taking part then please get in touch as soon as possible."

Entry for the event costs £10 and participants will receive a branded t-shirt produced by Chogou Ltd Embroidery & Printing in Stansted. Those taking part are asked to raise a minimum of £30 in sponsorships.

The money will be donated to Harlow's West Essex Mind branch.

Miss Gardner said: "Services that work reduce the stigma of mental health problems and help to support those suffering are important to Harlow and fundraising is a vital way of keeping them going."

"We hope to raise as much money as possible to support these services."

Search is on for caterers to run Town Park café

CATERING companies are being invited to bid for a contract to provide and run a café service in Harlow Town Park.

Spurriers House is currently being refurbished as part of the £2.8m park regeneration project part-funded by the Heritage Lottery Fund and will include a new refreshments area on the ground floor, along with a terrace.

Councillor Tony Durcan, Harlow Council's portfolio holder for regeneration and enterprise, said: "The regeneration of the Town Park is really gathering pace and with the refurbishment of Spurriers House and the addition of a café we are adding yet another great service to the park."

He said the location next to Pets' Corner, the Bandstand and Showground and within walking distance of Harlow Town station, offices and the town centre offered great potential to make it a successful operation.

The council is also seeking proposals from organisations within the local community interested in bringing the Bush Fair D Pavilion and associated sports pitch back into use.

"These are two great opportunities for organisations or companies to get involved in providing new facilities for the community and be part of Harlow's regeneration," said Cllr Durcan.

Tenders to run the café must be returned by Friday, July 10. The deadline for the pavilion is Friday, July 3.

Spotlight shines on high-flyers and those who motivate them

Ken Morley

star@hertsessexnews.co.uk

THE achievements of 59 students from schools, academies and colleges in Harlow were celebrated at a ceremony at The Playhouse.

All the winners, who were aged from 11-25, received an award from the Jack Petchey Foundation after being nominated by their peers and leaders in recognition of their efforts.

Outstanding

Each of them received a medallion, framed certificate and a cheque for £200.

Leader awards were presented to five adults who were judged to have demonstrated their ability to motivate young people in an outstanding way.

Among the guests invited to attend the ceremony last Tuesday were Harlow Council chairman Tony Hall and Sergeant Kevin Mayle of the Harlow South Neighbourhood Policing Team.

Clr Hall said: "I came to the town in 1976 as a police officer and after 30 years' service I became a local councillor; all with the intention of helping to make Harlow a great place to live."

"At the end of this wonderful event it certainly seems like that is working."

Sgt Mayle added: "This has been a fantastic evening highlighting what young people are really capable of given the right focus and determination."

The evening's entertainment was provided by dancers from Harlow College and Mark Hall Academy, Casey Hendricks from Stewards Academy and Hannah Martin from St Mark's West Essex Catholic School.

Passionate

The JPF was set by millionaire businessman Jack Petchey CBE in 1999 and during the past 16 years it has invested almost £90m in 2,000 youth initiatives across Essex and London. In Harlow it has awarded a total of £912,203 to youth organisations since 2001.

Mr Petchey, 89, said: "I am passionate about our awards scheme which enables young people to be recognised, valued and rewarded for their achievements and positive contributions to society."

'Waste not, want not' for charity making the most of supermarket cast-offs

Pilot project has redistributed almost six tonnes of fresh food

William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A CHARITY is helping to lead the war on waste in Harlow by redistributing tonnes of food destined for the rubbish tip.

Bounty Club is a new pilot project by the Michael Roberts Charitable Trust, which is also behind the town's foodbank.

The club is run by a team of volunteers who collect fresh food deemed unsuitable or unsellable by shops and supermarkets and then distribute it around the town.

Typical items include bread, milk, eggs and vegetables which all have a shelf-life of several days.

Stores allow the Bounty Club to take any food that is still in date but technically deemed as waste due to damage or restrictions on the amount of time they can stored.

If one or more items in a batch of food products are damaged, the whole batch would be thrown away but now Bounty Club picks up any products in good condition.

They are then passed on to various organisations including Spurgeon's chil-

DAILY BREAD: A Bounty Club volunteer make a pick up of food dren's centres, Safer Places, Streets2 Homes, Harlow Corps, Westminster Drug Project, Occasio House, refugee services and school holiday clubs.

Gary Knott, a director of the Michael

Roberts Charitable Trust (MRCT) which is based at Wych Elm, said Bounty Club is more about serving the whole community rather than individuals and families in crisis.

"It has been a successful pilot scheme as it helps to serve the community and also reduce food wastage," he said. "Over £6,000 worth of food is wasted by stores every year in Harlow."

"We distribute everything we get and people are always very grateful," said Mr Knott. "We never know what we are going to get; sometimes it can fill a whole van and sometimes it is not so much."

"However much we take, we know it will be appreciated and well utilised."

Bounty Club currently operates with MRCT funding and has access to the same vehicle used to distribute foodbank bundles.

The service, which is completely free, has already helped many people by delivering 5.8 tonnes of fresh food since the pilot scheme was launched last September.

Mr Knott said he is hoping to expand the service further into Harlow but in order to do so he is looking at making the scheme permanent with funding sources including the National Lottery and Essex County Council.

Individual donations are also important to keeping the project running.

Memories live on at funeral of former Newtown Neurotics bassist

FRIENDS and relatives shared their memories of musician Colin Masters, a founder member of the Harlow punk rockers the Newtown Neurotics, at his funeral last Wednesday.

Colin, the band's original bassist, died at the age of 59 last month from complications following an operation.

The service, which was held at Parndon Wood Crematorium followed a setlist approach with every section named after a Neurotics song.

Mourners, who included members of the band and Harlow punk poet Attila the Stock-broker, were asked not to wear black and were encouraged to write messages and memories on the white coffin.

Afterwards a wake was held went to the Greyhound pub for drinks.

Close friend and bandmate Steve Drewett said: "It was wonderful and really special. The ceremony was well attended and very emotional."

Colin played with the band from 1978 to 1988 when he left after being diagnosed with pleurisy.

Council under fire over grass cutting

Residents complain at frequency in some areas of town

William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

HARLOW Council have been forced to defend its grass cutting schedule in the face of a growing number of complaints that much of the town is overgrown.

While the authority recently announced a tight programme to combat overgrowth of verges, bushes and plains, residents have voiced their anger that not enough is being done.

More than 30 responded to a request on the Star's Facebook page asking for opinions as to whether grass cutting in the town was adequate. The overwhelming response was no.

Scruffy

"They always seem to cut the grass regularly up towards the town in case a VIP might visit, but never the rest of Harlow which is just left with very long grass everywhere which makes the place look scruffy," Facebook user Anita Puddy wrote.

Another Harlow resident, Caron Mouncey, said: "They seem to leave it until it's at least a foot long and then leave all the cuttings."

And Kirstie Harrison added: "It's not just the grass, everywhere is getting so overgrown and paths are pretty much covered now near where I walk every day. It needs cutting back as its stinging nettles."

The responsibility for maintaining

the town's green spaces lies with Kier Harlow, but the regularity and timetabling of their work is set by councillors and breaks down as:

- Grass in housing areas is cut every 17 working days,
- Highway verges are cut every 24 days.
- Large open spaces are cut every 34

working days,

- Some areas of grass are only cut once a year to encourage wildlife and promote biodiversity.

However, while the council claims that targets have been met, some residents have said that more regularity is needed than the current scheduled work.

Facebook user Beverly LeLong responded: "We were told that Kier can cut grass only every 17 working days and that's over three weeks which does not work in the summer."

Invested

With the grass cutting season now well under way, the council has invested in four new ride-on mowers, taken on new staff to strim and cut weeds, allocated resources for an additional month of grass cutting and acquired an extra hard surface weed spray to increase town-wide spraying from two occasions a year to three.

Mark Wilkinson, the council's portfolio holder for environment said: "This reinvestment shows the council's commitment to improve the look of Harlow.

"This is also about improving value for money for taxpayers when it comes to looking after the town's open spaces.

"We know from talking to residents and last year's budget consultation findings that the maintenance of the town's open spaces is a high priority."

Effort to boost water vole numbers in the Stort

CUTE CRITTER: Megan Phillipott puts one of the voles into a pen at the nature reserve HEV120150603A-675

Ratty's move to new home by the river

Sinead Holland

star@hertsessexnews.co.uk

ONCE a common sight along the riverbanks of Britain and immortalised as Ratty in Kenneth Grahame's classic The Wind in the Willows, the water vole is in danger of becoming more fiction than fact.

It is the UK's fastest-declining mammal but an ambitious project to reintroduce the species to the River Stort near Harlow aims to help reverse that trend.

Ratty was a cultured, relaxed and friendly character, with literary pretensions and a love of a life of leisure. However, survival is the main aim of the water vole which is under threat of extinction from the invasive American mink and loss of river bank habitat.

The initiative to reintroduce them in the Stort reached a critical phase last Wednesday when 160 of the endangered creatures were transferred from Essex Wildlife Trust's Fingringhoe Wick nature reserve to Herts and Middlesex Wildlife Trust's Thorley Wash nature reserve at Spellbrook.

Martin Ketchen, water vole conservation officer for the HMTW, said: "Without urgent action it is possible they could become extinct within the county as they have already been lost entirely from several Herts rivers, including the Stort."

Conservation

"Once this has occurred, problems with habitat loss become much more significant. Populations become isolated and the need for conservation on the whole of the river becomes important if the species is to recolonise.

"Although there is some recent evidence of water voles spreading gradually in some places, this is very limited. The opportunity to reintroduce the species on such a large scale is a tremendous boost to their overall conservation."

The 160 water voles were kept in pens for a week to acclimatise to their new home before being released into an area which provides an abundant and well-established habitat. Once established, it is hoped they will be able to spread along the corridor of wet flushes, ponds, channels and the main Stort Navigation.

Darren Tansley, Essex Wildlife Trust's water for wildlife officer, said: "This is a very important project. The Stort is ideal for water voles.

"With mink control in place, the necessary removal of voles from a part of Fingringhoe Wick has presented a wonderful opportunity for 'Ratty' to thrive along the Stort again."

Call for more to share joy of fostering

A MAN who has been a foster father to seven children is encouraging other families to consider putting themselves forward for what he describes as a "very rewarding experience".

With Essex County Council using Foster Care Fortnight (June 1-14) to find homes for an additional 60 children this year, Colin Lane has spoken of the enjoyment he and his wife, Eilis, got as foster parents.

Mr and Mrs Lane, who recently moved from Summers in Harlow to High Easter, started fostering after their own children, Conor and Sorchia, grew up and left home.

"We first considered the idea when we were on holiday and our children were moving out," said Mr Lane, 47. "We thought it would be good to use our parenting skills to help more children."

"That was three years ago and we were quickly approved to foster children from birth to 18. So far we have fostered children aged from five to 16 and it has been a very rewarding experience."

He added: "Being a male foster carer did feel a bit strange at first. I was normally the only male carer at the training courses and at the monthly support group meetings."

"However, everyone makes you feel so welcome so that now I don't even think about it. There is lots of training available from practical techniques for promoting good behaviour to basic first aid for children through to dealing with substance misuse."

"The next course I will be attending is about looking after asylum-seeking children."

Essex County Council will be holding a recruitment event at the Latton Bush Centre in Southern Way, Harlow, on Thursday, September 10 starting at 7pm. For more information about fostering, call 0800 801530 or visit www.essex.gov.uk/fostering.

RANGERS CLUB

The British birds at risk from threat of extinction

TWO OF our best-loved and most colourful birds are in danger of becoming extinct, according to a new survey.

The kingfisher (pictured right), which was once a common sight along the UK's riverbanks, and the puffin (below), which live on rock faces along the coastline, are among 37 species of birds whose numbers are at risk.

Others include the herring gull, the lapwing, the curlew and the red grouse.

Climate change, the loss of natural habitats and changes to the ways in which land is managed have all been blamed for the decline in many species.

The warning comes in a recently published report called the European Red List of Birds.

While some of the species such as the lapwing and curlew can be found outside Europe, others do not live anywhere else in the world which means that if their numbers continue to decline they could become extinct.

A spokesman for the Royal Society for the Protection of Birds said: "It would have been unthinkable 20 years ago that birds like the lapwing and curlew would be threatened species in Europe but the status of many species is deteriorating across the continent."

According to the report there are 246 species of bird which can be seen regularly in the UK, the Isle of Man and the Channel Islands.

Of these, 37 are thought to be facing extinction in Europe.

Civic honours for dedicated quartet

Ken Morley

star@hertsessexnews.co.uk

FOUR people have received civic awards from Harlow Council in recognition of their contribution and service to the community.

Nigel Dalby, Rebecca Moran, Paul McLintic and Kerrie Eastman were presented with the awards by Councillor Ian Beckett in one of his last acts as council chairman before handing over the chain of office to Cllr Tony Hall.

Mr Dalby, a Cub Scout leader, received his award in recognition of his commitment and service to Scouting within the district and also for his role as project manager and fundraiser for a new hall.

The building, which was opened last month, was built to replace the hut in Manor Hatch Close which was destroyed in an arson attack in 2011. Mr Dalby raised £150,000 and persuaded a local architect to design a purpose-built building while working on site clearance, planning permission and leases and keeping three sections of Scouts running in different locations.

Reputation

Ms Moran was nominated for demonstrating the true meaning of Scouting, upholding the reputation of the movement and the excellent training leaders receive as well as for her efforts in tending to a work colleague who was taken seriously ill in January.

Mr McLintic was honoured for his work in helping to connect the community with its local services and the relevant authorities. He was a founding member of the neighbourhood action panel in Churchgate Street and also co-founded the Churchgate Street Residents Association which has more than 84 members.

He is also a member of the Harlow Civic Society and is now its secretary.

Ms Eastman is the manager of local homelessness charity Streets2Homes and received her award for her work on behalf of the organisation.

During her five years in the post the charity has developed its services in providing care and support for some of the most vulnerable in society whilst retaining a human approach in helping its clients.

As well as leading and guiding staff, she has also organised and motivated an ever-changing group of volunteers, some of whom are former clients wanting to put something back to the organisation that helped them.

Charities join forces for in-store fundraiser

TWO national charities – Diabetes UK and the British Heart Foundation – will be asking shoppers to donate their loose change when they hold a joint collection the Tesco store in Harlow's Harvey Centre this weekend.

There are currently seven million people in the UK living with heart and circulatory disease and more than three million who have Type 1 and Type 2 diabetes.

The collection from 10am-4pm on Saturday and Sunday is part of a three-year partnership between Tesco and the two charities which aims to raise millions of pounds.

The money will be used to help people reduce the risk of cardiovascular disease and diabetes as well as funding the work of the charities.

Artwork inspired by history and heritage

Shopping centre unveils wall-mounted mosaics

Gemma Gardner

gemma.gardner@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A NEW piece of artwork reflecting Harlow's abundance of green spaces and urban environment has been unveiled in the Harvey Centre.

Artist Sarah Bracey created the work which consists of two mosaic moths and a butterfly, each one decorated in a unique way to capture elements of the town.

Sarah chose three pieces as a nod to the iconic three flying ducks which graced the living room walls of many British homes during the 1950s and '60s.

"I wanted to create a piece of artwork that had a strong connection with the history of the local area," she said. "Moths and butterflies are an important part of Harlow's heritage, reflected in the names of local pubs such as The Garden Tiger.

ART OF HARLOW: Harvey Centre manager Bryan Young and artist Sarah Bracey with Amy Battelle, Laura Bracey Curry and Ella Saddington who helped with the artwork

"Mosaic design also features heavily in Harlow, both due to the Roman settlements and during the building of the New Town."

The creation of the three pieces was a collaborative project, with Sarah using designs created by local school children and members of the public in the artwork. These were collected during a free workshop held in the Harvey Centre during the February half-term holiday.

"It was important that the local community contributed to the artwork to give them ownership," added Sarah. "We held a free art workshop in February and I was able to use the designs created during this as part of the final design."

Plans submitted to demolish bungalows

A PLANNING application to bulldoze hundreds of bungalows across three housing estates in Harlow has now been submitted.

Under the proposals revealed last month, 218 properties at The Briars, Copshall Close and Ayleys Field will be knocked down and replaced by 343 one, two, three and four-storey detached, semi-detached and terraced houses and flats.

Some of the new properties will be available to rent while others will be sold on the open market or offered on a shared ownership basis.

The current residents will be temporarily rehoused with the option of moving back once the work is complete or staying where they are.

A community centre, parking spaces and areas of landscaping are also included in the plans.

Agreement

Two weeks ago Harlow Council announced it had signed a development agreement with Home Group and Countryside, ending a lengthy consultation period during which residents were involved in producing a design and development brief.

An opinion poll showed that the majority of residents fully supported the plans, with fewer than 10 per cent opposed to the project.

The work will be completed in three phases. During the first, residents will be contacted for face-to-face meetings on how relocation will be carried out and given information on applying for alternative housing.

In a separate application, proposals to demolish bungalows at 337-338 Northbrooks have also been submitted. If approved, they will be replaced by nine one-bedroom flats.

Air ambulance expands fleet with new rapid response car

A NEW rapid response vehicle has been added to the fleet of the Essex & Herts Air Ambulance Trust after it received a £27,000 donation from package delivery company UPS.

The money was raised by 22 UPS employees who completed the Three Peaks Challenge, which involves walking the highest mountains in Scotland, England and Wales within 24 hours.

As a result of their efforts trust was offered the opportunity to apply for a UPS Foundation Grant and received £27,758, the full amount to cover the purchase of the car outright.

The rapid response vehicles carry the same life-saving equipment and drugs as the air ambulances but, unlike the helicopters, they are not weather dependent and can be used in poor conditions or when the helicopters are offline due to maintenance.

Stuart Elms, the trust's clinical director, said: "The charity constantly strives for clinical excellence and aims to push the boundaries of pre-hospital medicine and care, which doesn't stop in poor weather or darkness."

"The incredibly generous UPS donation will enable us to provide advanced critical care to more patients across Essex and Hertfordshire, ultimately providing a robust and resilient specialist pre-hospital critical care service that will continue to touch countless lives."

Sharon Hauber, HR director at UPS, added: "Volunteering is a huge part of the UPS culture and a source of pride for our organisation as a whole and it's great to see our employees working with charities such as this in their local communities and making a difference where they can."

Karen to start Race for Life in mum's memory

37-year-old will set airfield runners on their way

Ken Morley

ken.morley@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A WOMAN who was only 19 months when she lost her mother to cancer and whose four grandparents also died of the disease will set runners on their way at next month's Race for Life at North Weald Airfield.

Executive assistant Karen Dobrin will sound the starting horn in memory of her mum, Stephanie, who passed away at the age of 33, before taking part in the race herself.

"Dad says mum fought hard, she wanted to be there for me and my two sisters," said Karen, who lives in Epping. "I am 37 which makes me older than my mum was when she died."

Karen's mother had treatment and a mastectomy after she was diagnosed but the cancer returned.

"It's had a big impact on me. I try to be positive because I know mum wouldn't want me to not enjoy my life but I can't imagine how hard it must have been for her, knowing she was dying and going to leave three children behind."

Remember

"We talk about her but not the negatives. We want to remember her in a nice way and try to build a picture of who she was. It's hard not knowing who she is and it's unbelievably sad that she lost her life so young."

Karen's maternal grandmother died of the disease before Karen was born and her other grandparents also lost their battles against cancer. Her cousin, who is 50, is a breast cancer survivor.

"I love running and do a lot of exercise to keep healthy, but when you do Race for Life it's a different experience," she said. "It's not about the running or how fast you are, it's about connecting with other people going through it."

"I cry every time for the people I have lost or for the others in pain, but it's not about pity, it's about spirit."

She added: "My grandparents died of cancer but my cousin is a survivor. It goes

ON YOUR MARKS: Karen Dobrin will be starting the Race for Life in North Weald next month to show how far we have come; the care there is now is different and they can do so much more but we're still not there. It's still killing people so we need to do more research."

The Race for Life at North Weald takes place on the evening of Wednesday, July 15, with runners given the choice of either a 5k or 10k course.

Cancer Research UK spokeswoman Danielle Glavin said: "We understand that some women might feel daunted by the prospect of upping their distance from 5k to 10k but the atmosphere on the day is incredibly supportive."

Killer disease

- Every two minutes someone in the UK is diagnosed with cancer.
- Over the past 20 years more than seven million women have taken part in Race for Life.
- More than £513m has been raised to fund the charity's life-saving work.
- This year Cancer Research UK is hoping its Race for Life events around the country will raise £50m which will be used to find cures for all 200 types of cancer, affecting men, women and children.
- 80p in every pound raised goes directly towards the charity's work to beat cancer.
- Cancer Research UK does not receive Government funding and relies on events like Race for Life to continue its work.

"The reality is that the event offers the perfect opportunity to try a new challenge in a nurturing environment, with like-minded women committed to an amazing cause."

"Race for Life is the perfect opportunity to push your fitness and fundraising that little bit further. Whether you walk, jog or run, every step you take will help bring us one step closer to the day when all cancers are cured."

Fire crews to stage two-day strike over frontline jobs cuts

FIREFIGHTERS and emergency control room staff in Essex are preparing to take further strike action this weekend over job cuts.

The Fire Brigades Union said the walkout was in protest at Essex County Fire and Rescue Service's plans to axe least 179 full-time firefighters working at frontline stations.

The FBU claims says that as a result of cuts already made, the service has been missing key targets on response times to emergencies it argues that if the plans go through unchallenged, the public will have to wait longer for the first crew to arrive.

Alan Chinn-Shaw, secretary of the FBU in Essex, said: "These are unprecedented cuts which would see more than a quarter of all frontline firefighters axed. None of us want to take further strike action but the managers and politicians simply aren't listening and remain wholly intransigent."

Negotiations

"We are committed to negotiations but service managers have shown no sign whatsoever of compromise and are still intent on imposing deeply unworkable conditions that will put firefighters and the public we serve at great risk."

The union has also criticised a new IT mobilising system used to send fire appliances to emergencies.

"Managers at the fire and rescue service have known about the problems with the dispatching system for months now and yet the situation is still the same," said Mr Chinn-Shaw. "Senior managers need to pull their heads out of the sand and start taking responsibility for the failing IT system which has caused control staff additional stress on top of a recently imposed unworkable shift system."

Essex firefighters and 999 emergency control staff will strike on Saturday and Sunday. A spokesman for Essex Fire and Rescue Service said it would be putting into place "strong resilience arrangements" to provide cover across the county.

"The public can help us to help them in the run up to the strike by making sure their homes are fitted with a working smoke alarm and checking on elderly and vulnerable members of their family and neighbourhood to make sure they have one too."

Essex patients waiting longest for ambulance

New data gives emergency response times across the country

Harriet Sinclair

star@hertsessexnews.co.uk

CRITICALLY ill patients are waiting longer for ambulances in Essex than most places in Britain.

New figures for the CM17-CM21 postcodes covering Harlow showing that the times for ambulances reaching life-threatening cases with the recommended eight-minute target range from just 13 per cent to 46 per cent.

Meanwhile, areas bordering the county are getting a much better service. In the DA2 postcode – the other side of the Dartford Crossing – more than 85 per cent of patients with life-threatening conditions see a paramedic within the eight-minute timeframe.

The statistics compiled by Totally Communications reveal a similar story for most of the county and the eastern region, which is covered by the East of England Ambulance Service Trust.

Totally Communications data researcher Duarte Romero-Varela, who gathered and analysed the information for the whole of the UK, said: "These statistics are important for two different reasons. On one hand it is the first time that postcode data has been released and thanks to that we can provide specific information about the areas people live in.

Response times for Harlow postcodes

"On the other hand, this map is useful to spot the regional differences within the UK and conclude which ambulance trusts have a better performance. The areas in Essex show some of the worst response times in the country."

Red 1 and 2 calls are classified as emergencies where the patient is considered to be in a life-threatening condition. Government targets say ambulances should arrive at these incidents within eight minutes in 75 per cent of cases.

East of England Ambulance Service bosses say the trust had seen a significant improvement to its performance and response times over the past nine months. The trust exceeded two of its national response targets (Red 1 and Red 19 – a combination of Red 1 and Red 2 calls reached within 19 minutes so far this year) and is making significant improvements to its Red 2 performance.

During the past year 80.8 per cent of Red 1 calls were answered within eight minutes and the response to Red 19 calls achieved national standards.

But in September last year the trust was hit with a £1.2m penalty for not responding to 75 per cent of the most serious emergencies within the eight-minute target between April and July.

Rob Ashford, the trust's locality director for Essex, said the situation had dramatically improved and the figures for this year were better.

"We have shown an improvement of 10 per cent in response times for Red 2," he said. "It's still falling short of the target but 10 per cent is an improvement and Red 2 is always challenging because that makes up most of our calls."

"We still have a lot of work to do but we are recruiting a lot of new people and upskilling our work force and that takes time."

EAST chief executive Anthony Marsh said: "When I joined the trust in 2014 it was the worst performing ambulance service in the country. I am pleased to say this is no longer the case thanks to the actions we have put in place such as recruiting hundreds of frontline student paramedics and increasing ambulance cover."

"As a result, we have seen significant improvements to performance and response times to patients and are now one of the highest performing ambulance services in relation to getting to those patients in the greatest need."

"We will be recruiting another 400 student paramedics this year as we continue to increase frontline staffing and ambulance cover and make further improvements to our response time and patient care."

Milkman Les calls time after 33 years

A MILKMAN who has been delivering pints to homes in Harlow for more than 30 years can look forward to a lie-in after calling time on the job he loves.

Les Clark, 67, has been doing the Harlow rounds since 1982 and also delivers to Braintree and Bishop's Stortford. Now he plans to spend more time with his family and 16 grandchildren.

"When I became a milkman I didn't think I would enjoy the job as much as I did," said Mr Clark (pictured above). "It was the customers, they are the best part of the job."

"It was strange doing my last round, a bit nostalgic. But I'm now looking forward to my leaving party in a couple of weeks time."

Technology

Mr Smith, who lives in Bishop's Stortford, said that many changes have occurred in his time, none more so than the advancements of technology.

"I've gone from working with paper and pencil to using electronic rounds books and from driving electric floats to using Transit vans," he said. "A lot has changed."

Dairy Crest depot manager Carl Pryke said: "Les has been a great milkman and a brilliant supervisor. He's well-liked by all his colleagues at the depot and will be missed by them as well as by his customers."

"His commitment and service has been second to none."

Initially Arthur can't understand Annabelle as she just sounds like someone trying to talk through a trumpet. But with the help of the audience Arthur, Annabelle and Icarus start to understand each other. And the best thing is, when you're as tiny as Annabelle a little bedroom becomes a huge mountain range, so the quest to reach the top of the bookshelf begins. The show is best suited for children aged 3-6.

Art and food collide at new pop-up café

HUNT AND DARTON BROAD WALK, HARLOW

STEPPING into Harlow's newest café wasn't at first any different to entering any other in the town and there was little on the outside to suggest what might be in store.

I'd been briefed about what to expect from Hunt and Darton, and had visions of an all-singing all-dancing ensemble that would make it difficult to think, let alone have a conversation.

I sat down and was served some pineapple juice, their recommendation, and around me were families having lunch, friends catching up - it seemed positively normal and if it wasn't for a man wearing a green shiny clown suit in the corner I could have been in Costa.

However as the minutes passed things began to seem a bit more out of the ordinary.

Both Hunt and Darton (I never asked their first names) came to introduce themselves in an overly formal style and took my order. As I'd walked past and not noticed the sandwich board, I took their recommendation which was a roast dinner sandwich. My friend ordered avocado on toast, which turned out to be one of the more normal suggestions.

The pop-up shop has popped up in Harlow's Broad Walk after travelling to many towns around the country as part of the street performing duo's two year project that combines lunch with abstract performance, or "where food meets art," as they say themselves.

I'm feeling quite full. My layered sandwich contained meat and roast veg coated in gravy, but I still have a three course meal of drama to come.

After taking my plate away, Hunt and Darton take performance orders from a non-descript menu and are pushed back into the café front on a tea trolley. I've ordered the 'F Whistle', 'Della Dance' and 'Poem' as my starter, main and pudding.

I don't want to explain the performance in too much detail as it may ruin the surprise and weirdness of the café - but I would say it left me gaping in awe if not quite rubbing my eyes in disbelief. "He's had too much art," says Hunt, commenting on my slightly dazed expression.

They ask me to push them back into the kitchen on the trolley and select the next record to put on.

A day later I'm still not quite sure what to make of the café, but there was something brilliant in its peculiarity and had I not frozen with surprised awkwardness I would have laughed and cheered.

On my way out I was given a loyalty card and told that I would be "rewarded" should I complete it, which sounds ominous but also intriguing. They gave me one stamp.

Hunt and Darton will only be here until June 25 so I'd better get a move on if I want to receive my prize.

I picture arranging all my meetings for the next few weeks in the café to complete the card, it's quite an amusing thought.

I buy a Tunnocks Tea Cake for the road.

Top comedians bring spirit of Edinburgh Fringe to town

WEDNESDAY'S will be funny in June and July as the spirit of the Edinburgh Fringe Festival comes to town, with a host of top funny men and women appearing at Harlow Comedy Club.

Giving audiences a taste of what's to come 'Edinburgh Fringe Preview' series will see top comedians warm up for a festival show by testing out their material at The Square, on Fourth Avenue, Harlow.

On June 24 John Robins and Sally Anne Hayward will take to the stage.

Moving into July, Patrick Monahan, pictured left, and Ria Lina will perform on Wednesday July 8 and Andrew Bird and Chris

Martin will provide the final double header on July 22.

With a glut of TV experience between them, it is tough to pick a stand-out name but veteran of Channel 4 series 8 out of 10 John Robins has a highly accomplished CV that also includes appearances on Russell Howard's Good News.

He shares the bill with Sally Anne Hayward, who has been described as 'exceptionally funny' by the Independent.

Joel Dommett is another comedian with Good News experience and has also starred in ITV2's Reality Bites. He will follow Holly Burn on-stage, who has appeared in an ITV2 series of her own, Bad Bridesmaids.

The July 8 stars have a wealth of experiences too, with Patrick Monahan winning over a wealth of rave reviews for his 'twinkle-toed performances' on stage, while Ria Lina is an exciting new comedian who has picked up the Emma award.

Last but not least is Andrew Bird, who has previously supported Jon Richardson and Rhod Gilbert on tour and Chris Martin, not to be confused with the singer from Coldplay. Martin has supported Jack Whitehall and Russell Kane.

BACK HOME: Albino Peaches on stage at LinkFest in the Town Park

Future looks peachy

WITH Harlow's music scene dominated by covers bands, Albino Peaches frontman Dan Parkin said he is "proud" to be flying the flag for original music on the eve of their second single release.

Having been based in the town since their formation in 2012, the Peaches have had more success abroad than around Essex, but were proud to headline last month's LinkFest in Harlow Town Park.

Now the three-piece are hoping to build on their local live shows to take their blend of folk, indie and blues to a bigger audience.

Formed by singer-songwriter Dan Parkin and Tommy Judd, the Peaches have recently welcomed new bass player Kyle Panton.

The power trio's latest effort Should I Try? sums up the feelings of trying to crack the industry and was one of 60 songs written in an incredibly productive streak for songwriting.

Dan said: "It's good to be putting out a new song and we've had successes with our last single Memphis that we are hoping to build on. Having new material can be a good way of securing new gigs.

"Should I Try? rolls off the tongue and is probably the most pop-like song we've ever done with a really big chorus, even for us.

"We were writing a lot over Christmas and the song reflects that experience."

Memphis was an unexpected hit in America after a DJ gave it a play and made it part of the show's playlist.

The band have also had similar success in Europe, but have found the local scene harder to crack.

"Further away from home, we do really well but locally we don't seem to have clicked."

"But it was really good to play LinkFest, it is the biggest gig in Harlow of the year. We were the only band to play original music that day and we feel like we are holding the torch for new music.

"We've only been a band for two years and to be playing the biggest festival in Harlow is a massive achievement."

While the release date is yet to be confirmed, Dan said he would like to see it hit the virtual shelves of iTunes in late August, with a video to coincide.

He added that an EP release would be a "definite" at some point.

"I find that when you have more songs, it's actually easier to choose the ones you want," he said. "The quality is getting better and better so we'll have four or five great tracks to put forward."

The quirky name Albino Peaches was surprisingly conjured with relatively little thought, according to Dan, who said they chose something which had a 1960s vibe.

While Dan is originally from Derbyshire, he moved to Harlow in 2012 where he met Tommy to form the band.

Premiere screening of tragic sea tale

A PREMIERE screening of inclusive drama group Razed Roof's production of Lusitania: The Floating Palace will be held at The Playhouse on Sunday.

The film will be shown at 7pm in the studio theatre and viewers will also be able to purchase a copy of the DVD.

Written exclusively for Razed Roof by playwright Judith Johnson, Lusitania: The Floating Palace, follows the story of RMS Lusitania, which was torpedoed off the coast of Ireland by a German U-boat during the First World War.

RMS Lusitania, owned and operated by the Cunard Company, sank in just 18 minutes on May 7, 1915, with the loss of 1,201 lives.

GOING DOWN: How the London Illustrated News reported the tragedy

The sinking of the unarmed passenger ship as it sailed from New York to Liverpool was one of the most horrific incidents at sea during the war and caused international outrage.

The German government

claimed that the Lusitania was carrying military supplies, but Britain and America declared the sinking unlawful.

The disaster devastated the tight-knit dockland community in north Liverpool, where most of Lusitania's crew lived.

The show, which was performed on May 7, moved audiences to tears.

One critic who reviewed the performance wrote: "What was especially impressive with The Floating Palace was the way it enabled the cast members with disabilities and those without to work together in a way that used all their abilities, and which, so economically, brought the experience to life."

Donations of £3 are suggested for the performance.

Boys' blind faith

MELODIC rock band Looking For Liam are looking to reach new heights with the release of single Take What You Need after winning a top unsigned competition.

By winning May's edition of the Richer Unsigned contest, the Harlow four-piece will feature in leading music magazine Q as well as all Richer publications.

Looking for Liam have been active for nearly five years, but according to new guitarist Jordan Spowart, it has only been in the past six months the band have really got on top of their game and found their sound.

"We have developed a tighter sound in the last six months and we are sounding more alternative and real," said Jordan.

"We had a couple of gigs last week and we are looking to self-promote with this single ahead of the festival season."

Jordan was found to be the perfect missing piece for the band who had unsuccessfully worked with several other guitar players before his arrival in February.

LFL are led by vocalist Tom Harper-Ward, while Sam House takes bass and Charlie Townsend plays drums.

Take What You Need is described by Tom as: "A true representation of our sound and musical direction," and has so far amassed more than 5,000 views on YouTube.

The song is also available to hear on Soundcloud and download from iTunes.

Counting bands such as Muse, Coldplay and the Arctic Monkeys as their heroes and inspiration, the Harlow lads, still all in their teens, have already enjoyed success, having had support from BBC Essex Introducing and playing the Brownstock festival.

"There is a really catchy chorus and a proper groovy rock riff," said Jordan of the new single.

"The singing is really soulful and Tom's voice is really good on the track."

"I would like to get on bigger radio stations and do bigger gigs. We have got loads of songs and are in the process of choosing what we could pick out."

Jordan added the name of the band is a tribute to Liam, a friend of Charlie's who is blind, with the band being his 'eyes'. He said there is sometimes confusion online that Liam is lost and is being searched for.

One of the highlights of a summer festival season is the Brentwood Festival in Essex on July 18 and the band play the GoodFest in York the week before.

Get on the trail of new town's hidden beauties all through June

THERE'S a chance to uncover Harlow's hidden beauties during a month-long programme showcasing the town's art culture.

Harlow Art and Sculpture Trail provides a unique opportunity to uncover a range of artworks in the area, which will be on display in the windows of shops businesses and galleries.

The trail, which runs until July 4, will take in galleries and special exhibitions as well as artworks hung in shop windows.

A special exhibition was held at Eastgate Gallery, with an insightful studio tour also available on the first and final weekends.

Organised by Gatehouse Arts, the trail will also take in The Gibberd Gallery and The Harvey Centre Shopping Centre, while participating stores include Tesco, Gigi, Phoenix Resource Centre, Harlow Mobility and Nationwide.

While officially recognised as a Sculpture Town, many feel Harlow is not given the credit it deserves for a variety of art work on offer that can be easily taken in through a pleasant walk.

Trails Art Exhibition is being held to try and raise the profile of the town, described by MP Robert Halfon as the "culture capital of the East of England".

Cllr Karen Clemmer, of Harlow Council and Essex County Council, said: "The Harlow Art and Sculpture Trail is a fantastic opportunity to showcase Harlow's rich artistic heritage.

"Whether it is the legacy of great 20th century sculpture, one of the largest collections of public art in the country, with works by Henry Moore, Rodin, Hepworth, Fink and Mills amongst many others, or the vibrant contemporary arts scene. I am looking forward to revisiting many artistic favourites, and discovering some great new art."

Gatehouse Arts Gallery will be the central hub and trail start point. It will be open from 10.30am-3pm on Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday throughout the month.

For more details visit: www.gatehousearts.com or call 07530 048739.

BIG

LOOKING FOR TROUBLE: Bryce Dallas Howard with Chris Pratt in Jurassic World

Bryce Dallas Howard was just 12 when Jurassic Park was released. Now 22 years later, she's the leading lady in Jurassic World. Keeley Bolger finds out why she couldn't be happier

Assuming she "would never get a chance" to audition for a role in the much-anticipated blockbuster Jurassic World, Bryce Dallas Howard had another reason for "begging" for a meeting with the director Colin Trevorrow.

"I was just looking at that meeting as a chance to get spoilers," says the 34-year-old, laughing.

"As a fan, I wanted to know what they were going to do with Jurassic World, and I think what they chose to do was absolutely inspired," adds the actress, best known for her performances in The Help, Spider-Man 3 and the Twilight movies.

In Jurassic World, the action takes place in the dinosaur theme park originally envisioned by Dr John Hammond (played by the late Richard Attenborough). Howard plays operational manager Claire who, at first, is desperate to attract visitors.

But, of course, things go terribly wrong, and she ends up having to call in ex-military animal expert Owen (Chris Pratt) to try and save the day.

Playing the "powerful" but "misguided" Claire was a hearty life lesson for the actress, who is the eldest daughter of Happy Days actor and acclaimed director Ron Howard.

"Claire needed to let go of control," explains the actress, who has inherited her famous dad's thick auburn hair, green eyes and friendly manner.

"This was a really important journey for me in my own spirit, because I consider myself a bit of an organised person, perhaps a little too much at times, and it was beautiful to play this woman who really comes into her own. Hopefully I took some of that with me."

But just a glimpse at the actress' feet, which are nestled in a homely but bog-standard pair of white hotel slippers today, suggests that maybe she won't be keeping Claire's stilettos – which the character insists on wearing as she darts away from the dinosaurs.

"Claire goes out into the jungle and her white clothes get muddy and ripped up and she gets bruised and sweaty – but does not take off her heels!" says Howard with a loud laugh, joking that she's going to add "running in the jungle in heels" to her CV.

While the film is expected to make a whopping 100million US dollars in its opening weekend in the States, were there any doubts in Howard's mind about accepting the role?

She shakes her head indicating a firm 'no'.

"I don't think there's a bigger critic than me of anything that was going to step on the memory of what Jurassic Park was," says the actress. "When I eventually read the script, I felt so excited to be in a film that I so believe in, and as a fan, I'm very proud of this movie."

Not least because being in one of the summer's biggest blockbusters is winning her some young fans, including her eight-year-old son Theodore, who she says is "so excited" to see the film.

"Someone asked my three-and-a-half-year-old daughter [Beatrice] what her favourite thing in the whole world was, and she said, 'dinosaurs,'" says the actress, who married fellow actor Seth Gabel in 2006. "I was like, 'Atta girl!'

"It's very cool that I'm getting to be in this movie, and that Jurassic World hopefully is a film that really resonates with today's generation of young people in the way that Jurassic Park did 22 years ago. I hope that my children are a part of that."

While Theodore is at the prime age to watch his mum's dinosaur flick, Howard remembers her own parents having a different reaction when the original Steven Spielberg film came out in 1993, when she was 12.

"My parents were really strict and they would never let me watch a film as scary as Jurassic Park was at that age," recalls Howard.

"Yet they went on opening night! I distinctly remember this, because all my friends went to see the movie on that Friday and I wasn't allowed to go, I was devastated."

"My parents came home and they said, 'Bryce, this is cinema history, you must see this movie in the theatre'."

■ Jurassic World is in cinemas from today (Thursday).

TV Film of the Week

THRILLER: JACKIE BROWN ITV4, Tuesday, June 16, 11.55pm

When it was announced that writer/director Quentin Tarantino's third movie was to be an adaptation of ace crime novelist Elmore Leonard's Rum Punch, it seemed a perfect fit. It certainly can't have surprised anyone who'd seen Reservoir Dogs or Pulp Fiction and read Leonard to learn that Tarantino had been a big fan for years.

But, amazing as those films (especially Pulp Fiction) are, they are love letters to the movies and not much interested in delving beneath a dazzling surface.

Would he do justice, as no filmmaker had quite managed before, to the best American thriller writer of the past 50 years?

The first thing he did was change the title to Jackie Brown, after one of the main protagonists. Except in the book she's called Jackie Burke, and she's white. Never mind. Then he starts the film with a song from another movie – and not just any song, but the title song. But like everything else, it works. Jackie (Pam Grier) is a 44-year-old air hostess with a crummy airline who supplements her meagre income by bringing in money for illegal gun seller Ordell (Samuel L Jackson). Ordell visits bail bondsman Max Cherry (Robert Forster) to get another of his "employees" out of jail (so he can kill him). This leads to Jackie being arrested when she next brings in some money – and, unknowingly, some drugs for Ordell's girlfriend Melanie (Bridget Fonda).

After refusing to co-operate with law enforcement officer Ray Nicolette (Michael Keaton), Jackie's thrown in jail. Ordell returns to Max to get her out – we can guess why. But Jackie has her own plans, and they involve Ray and Max.

What follows is a leisurely (two-and-a-half hours) but gripping thriller, with the not overly-complicated plot driven by fascinating three-dimensional people.

Tarantino is a master of dialogue, but he's smart enough here to lift large chunks straight from the book, and when he adds, it's seamless. It's a less flashy, more mature film than his first two – it has a lot less violence, and there's nothing 'cool' about it when it erupts. In fact the whole thing is remarkably faithful to the book.

Which is not to suggest QT brings nothing to the party – he still flexes his cinematic muscles, particularly towards the end, when a crucial scene is replayed three times from different perspectives. And then there's the acting, which has always been his trump card. Nobody casts like QT – he's a genius at it – and the actors always respond with peak performances.

Still Tarantino's best film.

Coasts

GIG CHINNERY'S Southend,
 Friday, June 19

Having sold more than 100,000 tracks on iTunes thanks to a devoted following on social media, gained support from Radio 1 and XFM, and toured extensively, Coasts are very much a band on the rise so now is a great time to see them in an intimate setting like Chinnery's before they move on to bigger venues.

Coasts' self-titled debut album is released on September 4 and is an anthemic collection of towering hooks, huge summer grooves and emotive lyrics, which are infused with as visceral energy inspired by their shared love of dance music.

Highlights include fan favourite Oceans which reached more than four million plays on SoundCloud and Spotify without any airplay; Stay, which was partially written during the band's first rehearsal session; the Tinder-inspired Modern Love; a homage to the band's home city of Bristol with the alt-rock epic Wash Away; and the uplifting, tropical-flavoured Your Soul.

"Our album is about optimism, it sums up a huge journey we have been on as best friends," says guitarist Liam Willford. "It's about us learning to feel optimistic about life after losing our way, and about forgetting the noise that can distract you from following your dreams."

Coasts' already enviable list of accomplishments include: a rapturous reception at a packed tent in Coachella; a series of London shows which expand in size every time that they return, including Heaven and KOKO; Radio 1 and XFM support; a social media following of over 120,000; an invitation to perform on

Made in Chelsea; and even a famous fan in the shape of Jake Gyllenhaal.

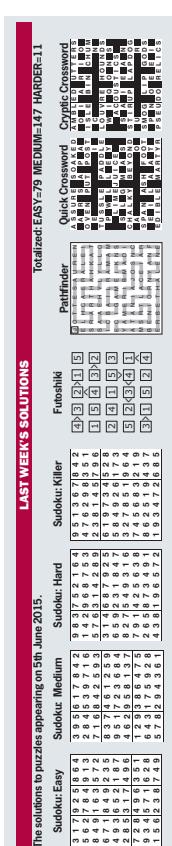

Coasts will be released on 10-track digital and CD formats, as well as an extended 16-track Deluxe Edition which will be available on digital, CD and vinyl. Pre-orders for the album are now open at <http://smarturl.it/coasts15> and smarturl.it/CoastsD2C. Fans who pre-order the album will be rewarded with an advance download of Stay on July 1 as well as another track on August 1.

The Bristol-rooted quintet are building towards the release of their debut album with a Coastal headline tour of seaside towns and river cities, taking in Southend along the way, as well as appearing at numerous high profile festivals over the summer.

"We are now seen by a larger, more engaged audience."

"we would be happy to recommend the Local World social media page, but real customers"

Don't just take it from us...
We've been helping TMS Property Services Ltd grow a social media audience since October 2014. It's been a great success. Here's what their Managing Director had to say:

"In the first few months our Facebook Likes have increased from 168 to 801, exceeding our expectations. Our Twitter page had 8 followers when we started, and currently stands at 327.

More importantly, we know our posts are now seen by a larger, more engaged audience.

We are sent regular reports from our account manager Alex who is always extremely helpful. Alex resolved inherent issues with our Google Plus business page, making it easier for people to find us while the regular posts are improving our ranking in Google.

Commercially, this puts our business in a much stronger position in what is a very competitive market place. At TMS Property Services we would be happy to recommend the Local World social media and SEO packages to any business looking to reach more potential customers".

Belvoir makes the move into the sales market

NEW IN: Billy Smith

LETTINGS agency Belvoir Harlow has made a move of its own ... into the sales market.

Billy Smith will be managing the sales department of their High Street agency - he has worked locally for the past 10 years, gaining a wealth of experience and knowledge of the local market.

Billy is known for his high level of customer care and professionalism when dealing with one of the most stressful life events and because of this, finds he regularly has clients returning to him and recommending him to friends and family.

Billy has lived locally all his life and his in-depth knowledge of the area is a huge benefit for anyone looking to move.

As sales manager, Billy will be responsible for property valuations and overseeing each phase of the sales process - making it as smooth as possible for both the vendor and the buyer.

When not working, Billy is passionate about football and enjoys attending music events and is keen on travelling.

Otherwise, the Belvoir team remains unchanged - headed up by director Paul Harten and branch manager Tracy Allen, with property managers Sophie Harten and Jade Mullin and administrator Beccy Atkinson.

Paul has owned Belvoir since 2003 and has worked hard to build and maintain an outstanding reputation in the town. He was born in Harlow and has lived here all his life. He has been a landlord himself for 14 years, so he has a sound knowledge of the lettings business from both sides.

Many landlords have benefitted from Paul's expert advice that he is able to offer from first-hand experience.

Tracy has worked for Belvoir since 2005. Starting off as a lettings negotiator, Tracy was promoted to branch manager in 2009.

Also born and raised in Harlow, Tracy has extensive knowledge of the town and is able to offer invaluable advice to investors on the best areas to purchase their buy to let property.

So if you're looking to buy, sell or rent - call Belvoir on 01279 426888.

"Plans for a Successful Sale"

Our research has shown that buyers overwhelmingly prefer floorplans on property details in addition to the usual description and written dimensions. There are several good reasons behind this preference, which is why we always feature floorplans on our particulars:

Firstly, where several properties are competing for a buyer's attention, the particulars that include a floorplan always make an immediate impression. The layout of a property is a major consideration when choosing a new home, and cannot adequately be described by words and room sizes alone. It is the relationship between the rooms in a property that can make the difference between a comfortable and attractive home and a purely functional one. This relationship is enhanced by our use of 3D floorplans in many instances.

People make buying decisions on how a property "feels" as much as they consider its size. Several smaller rooms are often more practical than one impressively large one, particularly when there is a family to consider. Only floorplans can accurately relay how the accommodation actually "works" in practice, illustrating how it could complement the needs of a buyer.

Conversely, in instances where a floorplan alerts a purchaser to a blatantly unsuitable property, fruitless viewings can be avoided. This helps to improve the ratio of viewings that actually become sales, saving a great deal of time and frustration.

We also have examples of buyers having bought a property that might have otherwise appeared unsuitable, but the floorplan helped them to visualise adaptability in the accommodation that encouraged them to view. Indeed, Rightmove reports that property listings with a floorplan receive 60% more interest than those without a floorplan.

Floorplans suggest an open approach to property marketing. No longer do buyers have to translate euphemistic "agent-speak". After all, part of your agent's job is to match the right buyer to the right property without recourse to flowery mis-description, saving everyone time, and reducing the stress of moving home.

Scrap Cars

End of the road for your vehicle?

Responsible drivers scrap their vehicles at an Authorised Treatment Facility (ATF).

Because only an ATF can legally scrap a vehicle. That means any pollutants will be made safe before it's recycled in an environmentally friendly way.

What's more, for certain types of vehicle you'll get a DVLA approved Certificate of Destruction (CoD). A CoD proves that the ATF has told DVLA your vehicle has been scrapped and so is no longer your responsibility. www.direct.gov.uk/motororing

End of the road? Get over it and move on with your local ATF:

Gladwin keeps faith with men

Shepherd Neame Essex Cricket League, Division Two Harlow Tn 217-8
Horndon-on-the-Hill 221-6
Horndon won by four wickets

HARLOW Town captain Neil Gladwin has pledged to keep faith with his struggling side despite another disappointing performance, both with the bat and in the field.

The Phoenix Park men went down by four wickets against Horndon-on-the-Hill.

Of most concern must be the form of experienced former Saffron Walden and Sawbridgeworth skipper Joe Holland.

He was dismissed for two runs last Saturday.

His previous league scores this season are 0, 2 and 11.

Gladwin said: "We will stick with the same side this week and give the guys the opportunity to put things right."

After losing the toss Gladwin's men were asked to bat first.

The visitors started well and openers Shiraz Ali (24) and Ashley Alderson breezed to 50.

Holland, looking for a big score to increase his confidence, was left wondering how his solid forward defence saw him bowled early on.

Disappointed

Alderson shone however, and will have been bitterly disappointed to depart on 89 just as his maiden league century looked within his grasp.

Ramya Upadhyay chipped in with 39.

Gladwin ensured Town reached 200, claiming their maximum batting points, but he ran out of partners as the visitors finished on 217-8 off their 52 overs.

In the field, Town simply did not get their line of lengths right in the initial overs.

Six bowlers were used inside the first 15 overs as Gladwin searched for a fruitful wicket-taking combination.

The hosts reached well over 100 before the first wicket fell; Upadhyay forced Connor Hammond to nick behind to Pat Yates for 47.

Stern words from Town's captain injected some much-needed life into the fielding and bowling as Gladwin's men began to chip away at the Horndon line-up.

Ronnie Yates (2-34) and Upadhyay (4-67) were most successful with the ball, while Gladwin held two sharp chances at slip, but the damage had already been done with the opening partnership.

Horndon captain Jeff West finished the game in a flourish, hitting a rapid 42 not out as Town lost by four wickets.

Gladwin added: "I was disappointed with the guys in the field. Unlike last week where we were vibrant and energetic with both the ball and in the field, we were missing that spark."

Ultimate Ultra

THE Northants Ultra, a 35 mile multi-terrain race around the Northants countryside, was the destination for Harlow Running Club members.

Brendon Maclean was 122nd out of 188 in 7hr 13min 09sec. He was followed home by: Andy Ramage 128th 7:18:14; Sandi Rust 129th 7:18:14; Holly Nairn 153rd 7:55:17; Gary Godfrey 154th 7:55:19; Darren Coates 155th 7:55:20.

England eye Harlow athlete Canaan for Commonwealth Youth Games

ENGLAND selectors are thought to be considering Harlow's Canaan Solomon for a place at this year's Commonwealth Youth Games in Samoa.

The 16-year-old highly-rated middle-distance runner, a student at Mark Hall School, has continued his good progress and won the 800m race at the Essex County Championships a fortnight ago.

This was when he set a new Essex county record time, recording 1min 52.05sec.

He is third in the UK U17 boys 800m rankings.

Meanwhile, Canaan took part in the British Milers Club Classic meet at Milton Keynes last Saturday.

Most of the leading youngsters were competing and England selectors were present.

Canaan was third in a mixed 800m, clocking 1:52.02, a new personal best (PB).

John Stow a Harlow-based coach at Woodford Green & Essex Ladies AC said: "After his race Canaan was spoken to by the England selector and is named as a 'possible' for the Commonwealth Youth Games in September."

Also at Milton Keynes was 12-year-old Sidnie Ward, another champion at the Essex County Championships.

He was eighth in a mixed 800m race, running a PB of 2:14.00, a time that ranks him joint third in the UK for U13 boys.

Earlier in the week at Watford,

Sidnie lowered his 1500m PB by seven seconds, recording 4:33 he took fourth and this moved him to second in the UK.

St Nicholas pupil Zoe Benton triumphed in the 300m at the Bedford International Games despite driving rain.

She ran 45.07 and remains number one in UK for this event in the U17 girls category.

Skipper's run-hungry side up for the chase

Switch to limited overs matches set to pay dividends

Shepherd Neame Essex Cricket League, Division One
Harlow 316-6d
Woodford Wells 248-7
Match drawn

SKIPPER Rehman Ahmed believes his side will start to climb the table now the league season has switched to limited overs matches.

Speaking after his side's high-scoring draw at home to Woodford Wells, Ahmed knows the big hitters in his side can chase down any target.

He said: "It suits our game. Our bowling lacks penetration so we look to contain teams in 50-over games. We have a flatter track [at home] and it will suit us to slow teams down. I am confident we can chase anything."

Harlow lost the toss and were asked to bat first on a flat batting track at Marigolds.

Openers Hafiz Yawar and 14-year-old Alan Jones got off to a near perfect start with an opening partnership of 148 from only 31 overs.

The stand ended when Jones was stumped off the bowling of leg spinner Rahul Patel for 84, his best knock since breaking into the first team.

Yawar was joined by the captain at the crease. However, their partnership wasn't so fruitful, as Yawar was dismissed for 70, clean bowled by Rory Ellison.

With the openers having laid a decent platform, it was left to Rehman and Ahmed Khawaja to accelerate the run rate.

Both batsmen took on the Woodford Wells bowling attack.

Rehman made a run a ball 52, before being caught in the deep off Patel.

Khawaja went on to destroy the Woodford Wells bowling attack, scoring a blistering 101 not out from just 53 balls.

His second 50 came off just 16 balls, leaving Harlow on a huge total of 316-3 from their 52 overs.

Tore them apart

Rehman wasn't surprised to see Khawaja's knock. "It was absolutely ridiculous – he just tore them apart," he said.

"We took the game away from them."

Jones is also quickly finding his feet in the first team. "He looks fantastic. He had a more positive mindset. The kid has got talent," added the impressed skipper.

Woodford started their reply well and were intent on chasing the big total set by Harlow.

Nick Baxter struck first for Harlow, clean bowling Ed Buxton for 18, leaving the score on 39-1. Captain and opener Joe Johnson was joined by Rishabh Shah and the two put on a quick-fire 64.

This partnership was ended by Leg spinner Ross Vasani who had been brought on by Rehman along with Yawar to stem the run rate, as there was little in the wicket for the seamers.

Vasani trapped the dangerous looking Shah lbw for 26 in only his second over.

Vasani went on to bowl an impressive spell, restricting the Woodford batsman and taking a further two wickets.

He was the pick of the bowlers on a day that favoured the batsman and finished with 3-61 from his 14 overs.

Johnson was finally dismissed for 86 when caught on the boundary by Ant Webb off the bowling of Luke Heskett. Woodford, with the run rate against them, then decided to bat out for the draw.

Rehman reintroduced Lewis Aldred into the attack to try and threaten the tail and this move paid dividends as he took two quick wickets.

However, the visitors were still able to secure the draw as they finished their innings on 248-7.

Paringdon's pride as local clubs turn out for festival

TEAMS turned out in force for the third annual Paringdon Youth football festival. Held at Paringdon Sports & Social Club, nearly 1000 children with age groups starting as young as U6 and going all the way up to U15s.

The tournament drew interest with teams not only attending from the local and surrounding areas but as far afield as Northampton, Wheathampstead and West London, representing six different leagues, across multiple age groups and three different county football associations.

Gregg Pike, tournament co-ordinator, said: "It was fantastic to see so many local youth sides supporting the tournament and coming together in what has to be one of, if not, the biggest tournaments the town has seen for years."

The tournament kicked off with U7s and U8s, followed by U10s and U12s.

Summers Youth enjoyed a successful day with both the U7 and U8 Cobras winning their respective age groups.

Waltham Abbey Youth won the U10 category and Barkingside Youth Whites triumphed in the U12s.

The next day the U6, U9, U11 and U15 teams arrived in force for another fun packed day of football.

The U9s turned out to be a very competitive age group, which saw a penalty shoot-out take place to determine which team progressed out of the group stage as both teams were tied on all criteria in the group stage.

Summers Cobras were successful and went on to win the final 1-0.

The U11s again proved to be

Club courts Essex cup success

HARLOW Volleyball Club has celebrated more success on the court.

Both the women's and men's teams, based at Passmores Academy in Harlow, can look back on a fantastic season.

The Harlow women's team made it through to their finals day tournament in Chelmsford, while the following day the men played their finals day event at Braintree.

The women finished third in their Essex Cup tournament.

"They played very well and just missed out on getting to the final," said Ilia Kalanov, head coach at the Harlow Volleyball Club.

Harlow lost two sets to one against the eventual winner Southend, losing by only one point.

"We were unlucky as just one point was needed to get to the final. I am sure that next year our girls will achieve even more," Kalanov said.

The men's team won the Essex Tachikara Plate for the third year in a row.

"We won all six matches and won 2-1 in the final against Chelmsford," said Kalanov.

"It looks like it is our Harlow cup now. We have a different team every year but keep winning it, which is a really good achievement."

The men's team is now competing in Division One of the Essex League, just one level below national.

"I can proudly say that our volleyball teams did very well, as we did last season," beamed Kalanov.

Promotion for Norcott after Wembley finals

HAVING been assistant referee at two Wembley finals in May, Harlow-based referee Wade Norcott (pictured above) has now been handed a promotion.

Already a regular assistant referee in the Championship and a referee in the Ryman League, promotion has now been earned to ref in the Vanarama National League South for next season.

Norcott, 31, who started as an official in the Harlow & District Football League, ran the line in the Sky Bet League One play-off final, Preston North End's 4-0 win over Swindon Town.

This was a fortnight after he was an assistant in the FA Vase final between Glossop North End and North Shields - a tie won 2-1 by Shields after extra-time.

"I would say taking part in any form in a Wembley fixture, either as a player or match official, has got to be the highlight of any career. It's a dream come true," said Norcott, of Copshall Close.

"I guess we all start out playing football on the streets or over the local park dreaming of scoring the winning goal in a Wembley cup final, so to get there as a match official is just as satisfying."

Massive surprise

"It was a massive surprise to receive the appointment. No matter which ones you receive during the season, or which rumours you hear, you can never expect to get the phone call."

Norcott's career began as a fresh-faced 14-year-old back in 1998 and has made impressive progress up the ladder.

He was certainly looked after by the FA before his first taste of a national final in the FA Vase. He revealed: "A lot of media attention is given to clubs' preparations for their big day and it's hardly different for the officials, just without the spotlight."

"We went out for dinner as a group with [former Premier League referee] David Elleray, Neale Barry [FA Head of Senior Referees] and Peter Elsworth [senior referee admin manager]."

"The day itself was pretty straightforward, with normal timings for breakfast - healthy, of course, no fry-ups - and then it was back to your room to get ready before being picked up around midday to go to the ground."

"This was when it really hit me - walking out to the pitch and having photos taken with guests and your colleagues on the famous turf."

"To walk up the famous steps and see my friends and family who had come along to support me was also a memory that will take a long time to fade."

TOKYO RISES FOR ENGLISH CHAMP

2020 Olympics the target as boxer seals English title

by Alan Scott

alan.scott@hertsessexnews.co.uk

FOURTEEN-year-old boxer Georgie Ellis moved a step closer to his dream of representing Great Britain at the Olympic Games as he became a two-time national schoolboy champion.

The pugilist, from Old Harlow, produced a devastating performance to secure the title at the England ABA National Schoolboy Championships.

He defeated Birmingham-based boxer Kallum Wood to triumph in the 32.5kgs section at the English Institute of Sport in Sheffield after taking an unanimous decision.

Former Harlow ABC fighter Georgie is now a double English Schoolboy champion, having won the 29.5kg division in 2014.

However, this is the end of schoolboy boxing for Georgie, as he will be 15-years-old next February.

This means he will be eligible to represent England at international amateur level, once he reaches 38kg (83 pounds).

Olympic Games

His ultimate aim is to represent Great Britain at the 2020 Olympic Games in Tokyo in five years' time.

Georgie, who lives in Churchgate Street, was also able to train in the gym normally used by the Great Britain boxing team as he prepared for the championships.

The student at Leventhorpe School in Sawbridgeworth is a member of the famous Repton Boxing Club in East London.

He said: "I train hard to fight easy. I have been training at Repton Boxing Club three times a week and at home in between for the last five months in preparation for the National Schoolboy Boxing Championship.

"I was lucky enough to have the opportunity to train in the gym and use the facilities normally used by the GB boxing team."

Having dominated his contest against Wood, a member of the Birmingham-based Aston ABC, Georgie said: "I would like to thank all my coaches."

The Year 9 student breezed through the preliminary rounds to reach the finals for the second time.

In the final he went on to win all three rounds, securing the unanimous verdict from the judges (30/27, 30/27, 30/27).

He was one of 13 Repton Boxing Club members who reached their respective finals, with ten becoming champions as the club dominated the competition.

Track spurs on athletes

A BRAND new track was the destination for Harlow Athletic Club which competed in the Southern Women's League.

Polly Woods and Chloe Gazzard were among the victorious athletes in the Division One meet at Wycombe.

Woods picked up first places in the high jump, long jump and triple jump and threw well in the shot and hammer. She even managed to extend her personal bests (PBs) in two events.

Eleanor Moss threw in excess of 28 metres to win the javelin and just over 26m in the discus.

Chloe Gazzard made her first appearance in more than a year and scored useful points in the 100m and shot put events and capped her day with a win in the B high jump.

Rosa Huntington took second in the B long jump.

The team's success on the day was largely built on a strong U15 girls' team.

Beth Harryman made her debut and performed very well with first place finishes in her events the high jump, long jump and 75m hurdles.

Fantastic

Ami Ashby made her first outdoor appearance and ran well to win the B 100m. She produced a fantastic leap to win the B high jump.

Anna Clatworthy won the B hurdles and B long jump and was second in the A 100m.

Izzy Brown and Katie Brennan picked up two second places in the A and B 800m respectively. They then sealed third spots in the A and B discs.

Sisters Eilidh and Grace Malcolm ran well in the 1500m and also picked up seconds.

The girls' other sister, Mairi, threw well and also picked up a useful third in the 200m B race.

Claudia Andrews was third in the 200m.

Harlow's team of Ashby, Andrews, Harryman and Clatworthy powered past South London Harriers to take the win by about 30m in the 4x100m relay.

Harlow were second overall. South London Harriers won.

Team manager Steve Lott said: "Obviously we missed not having all our athletes available but I'm so proud of what this group did."

"There is a tremendous spirit amongst our athletes and the team probably hasn't been as strong for quite a while."
